Chinese president Xi Jinping has ordered a swift passage of the controversial legislation through the region's legislature to quell the uprising, according to China's state-run Global Times newspaper. Image: Chinese President Xi Jinping. Pic: CCTV Hundreds of masked protesters gathered in the night to rally against the bill, which would allow mainland authorities to send people to jurisdictions including Taiwan and mainland China for trial. The Hong Kong government has delayed the passing of the bill by two weeks but the legislative session is scheduled to resume on Friday and the protests could still turn violent. According to Reuters, about a million people took part in the largely peaceful demonstration. The government has put the number at 400,000. Image: The Hong Kong government has postponed the passing of the bill by two weeks The Civil Human Rights Front, which organised the demonstration, said: "We are still prepared to face the government." Image: The demonstrators gathered in the late hours of the night The bill would also allow the Chinese authorities to extradite criminal suspects from Hong Kong, a region that has been governed separately from the mainland since its return from British to Chinese rule in 1997. The proposal has sparked huge controversy in Hong Kong, an autonomous city, with residents fearing it would erode their rights. Image: Police dispersed the protesters and used tear gas and pepper spray The demonstrations began in June over what protesters said were Beijing's growing encroachment on the city's autonomy. They have since morphed into broader anti-government and anti-China protests.
